THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 16, 1862.

Southern Reliance.

We sometimes hear a half secesh say that in the war South the slave should not be disturbed, but suffered to remain a slave and work for his master. We regard the slave as a very efficient means in sustaining the rebels in the South, and we are supported in this view of the matter by the rebels themselves.

The Richmond Whig thus speculates upon the future: "The fourteen Southern States have two millions of white men between the ages of 15 and 50. They are not shop-keepers, tailors, factory-men, button-makers, &c., turned loose upon the world, and forced to enlist from want; but they are used to handling the shot-gun and rifle from the age of 12. At the least calculation we have a million of fighting men. This force can be kept in the field as long as the North may assail us and it will not interfere with our producing or agricultural population. When the present crops are gathered, the South will not again feel any want of food for man or horse. Insubordination among her black population, upon which the North counted so largely, does not exist; our slaves can be safely trusted to the management of the boys under eighteen and the old men, and abundant crops be thus secured while our fighting men are in the field."

It thus appears that the real rebel strength of the South is in her slaves. Is this the reason why the secesh everywhere are opposed to a general confiscation and freedom of the rebel's slaves?

The Whig bases its estimation on the census of 1840 and 1850—and assuming that the ratio of increase from 1850 to 1860, is as great as that from 1840 to 1850. The States of Maryland, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri are included in the enumeration, although all but one (Tennessee) are wholly under the control of the Federal Government, and furnish only irregular accessions to the rebel ranks. Deducting the above named States, as they should be, the number of men [illegible]

Hereafter the right arm of rebel power will be cut off as far as possible on the advance of the Federals into the rebellious States. They will not be privileged to go into the field of war while their slaves are protected in raising food. If food is found, it will be used to sustain our armies, and the slaves will be employed to perform the labors of our camps. We can use the freed blacks very conveniently while "our men are fighting in the field."

DIVISION OF WASHINGTON TERRITORY.—We notice that the Washington Statesman and Golden Age are discussing the propriety of a division of Washington Territory and the establishment of a separate Territorial or State organization east of the mountains, making the Cascade range the boundary. The Golden Age, published at Lewiston, seems to favor the project, while the Statesman opposes it. We do not intend to mingle in the discussion to any extent, but simply remark the fact that the cause of difference between these two journals comes from one being located near the probable centre of the new Territory, or State, while the other would be at the outer edge. Locality has, therefore, considerable to do in the formation of opinions of expediency, etc., in this discussion. We doubt not the question will come before the session of the Legislature of that Territory which meets at Olympia on the first Monday in December next.

THE DOWN-TRODDEN OF EUROPE!—The down-trodden of Europe hail the flag of the stars and stripes with holy joy. On the 20th July there were in the harbor of Trapani, Sicily, three American ships—the Pannel, of Bath, Gov. Langdon, of Portsmouth, and Friar, of Boston. Garibaldi was on a visit to the city. The ships were gaily dressed with American flags. Garibaldi gave the American flag a handsome salute. At the town hall he addressed the enthusiastic people. At the public dinner, Garribaldi gave as his toast: "The Great Republic of the United States of America;" and added, "I am proud to say I am an American Citizen." There was a warm feeling for America on the occasion, and it extends throughout Italy. It will burn brighter and brighter as the republic of progress and freedom becomes invincible, though GARIBALDI may be in chains.

OH, FUDGE!—The Walla Walla Statesman says that a man by the name of Fudge left at that office, a potatoe large enough to make a meal for a whole family. Rather tough story, provided the family should contain sixteen or more hearty youngsters. Families in Oregon, it will be remembered, usually contain about that number.

CRADLING.—A few weeks since a farmer in Illinois cradled three acres of wheat, and that night his wife, not to be outdone by him, cradled three babies.—Mount Carmel, Ill., Register.

The rebel Congress has passed a vote of thanks to Gen. Morgan, the guerilla for his distinguished services.

Additional Eastern News.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—General McClellan, in calling attention of the officers and soldiers of the army of the Potomac to the general order, publishing to the army the President's emancipation proclamation, says: "The Constitution confides to the civil authority the power of making, expounding and executing the laws. Armed forces are raised and supported simply to sustain the authorities, and are to be held in strict subordination thereto in all respects. This fundamental rule of our political system is essential to the security of our republican institutions, and should be thoroughly understood and observed by every soldier. The principle upon which and the objects for which the army shall be employed in suppressing the rebellion must be determined and declared by the civil authority. Therefore, the Executive is the proper and only source through which the views and orders of Government can be laid down to armies." Discussion by officers concerning public measures determined upon by the Government, is adverted to by the General as an evil against which it is thought advisable to guard the armies of the Republic, as it tends greatly to impair and destroy the discipline and efficiency of the troops, by substituting a spirit of political faction for that firm, steady and earnest support of the Government which is the highest duty of a soldier.

CAIRO, Oct. 7.—As yet we can only state the general results of last week's fight in the vicinity of Corinth. Skirmishing commenced on Tuesday, Sept. 30th, and there has been more or less fighting on each day since.

The rebel loss at Corinth was about eight hundred killed and fifteen to eighteen hundred wounded. We have fifteen hundred prisoners at Corinth and three hundred more on the Hatchie. More are constantly coming in. General Ord says, on Sunday we found several hundred wounded, and probably more than that number of the enemy were taken. Several thousand stand of arms were thrown away by the rebels in their flight. They are mostly new and of English make.

Our loss at Corinth is believed to be three hundred killed and a thousand wounded. The fighting on Saturday is described as desperate in the extreme, the rebels rushing up to the mouth of the cannon. Many of them were blown to atoms. Many houses in the town were badly shattered by shot and shell. Half the rebel soldiers were barefoot and ragged. The prisoners say their effective force was sixty-five thousand. This is probably an over-estimate.

On Sunday, General Ord drove the enemy five miles, over hills and through woods and valleys, the rebels taking advantage of every wood for their infantry and every hill for artillery. The fight lasted seven hours. Among the prisoners captured are two aids of Van Dorn. The rebel General Rogers, of Texas, was killed. General Oglesby, of Illinois, died of his wounds. Generals Ord and Veach were slightly wounded.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 7.—General Gilbert's corps is at Lebanon, Kentucky.

It is supposed here by military men that the whole rebel force is retreating to Hall's Gap, a few miles south of Crab Orchard (Lincoln county, fifty-four miles S. S. E. of Frankfort), where they intend to make a stand. Nearly all the bridges between us and the rebels are burned, and some time will elapse before they can be reconstructed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The Herald's Washington special dispatch says: Gov. Bradford and ex-Gov. Hicks of Maryland are here today to ask the aid of a military force to protect agents of that State in making enrollments for the draft. The enrollment has been completed in all parts of the State except the four lower counties of the Eastern Shore, where the secessionists have destroyed the partially completed enrollment lists, and driven the officers out of the counties. The Governor's request has been granted.

Parties from the Pacific coast are here importuning the Government to accept the services of ten thousand cavalry, well trained horsemen, with good horses, who will march across the plains, and reach the Atlantic coast at very little greater cost per regiment than is now required to bring a regiment of infantry from Boston to Washington.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—Dispatches to headquarters bring intelligence to the effect that on Saturday morning, Oct. 4th, Gen. Schofield advanced upon the rebels at Newtonia, Newton county, Missouri, and, after two hours' fighting the enemy broke and fled in all directions. Their force was estimated at 15,000. Our loss is trifling. Rebel dispatches intercepted after the fight, advised Schofield of the intention of the rebels to concentrate their whole force at a point twelve miles distant from Newtonia. To this point, Schofield was marching with the expectation of a battle on Sunday. No further particulars have been received.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 7.—A dispatch from Cumberland, Md., says that the rebel Imboden's entire wagon train, embracing supplies of all kinds, with two pieces of artillery, a hundred stand of small arms, and fifty prisoners have been captured by Col. McReynolds, who is in pursuit of him up Great Cacapon creek, Virginia.

Full Account of the Battle near Corinth.

CORINTH, Miss., October 8th.—On Friday morning, October 3d, our outposts were attacked by the enemy in force, six miles northeast of this place. By nine o'clock the engagement became general. Our men fought with great coolness, but regiment after regiment and brigade after brigade poured in upon us, and we were forced slowly backwards, fighting desperately. The rebels pushed forward, holding every foot gained. They outflanked our inferior force right and left and were forming in our rear. We were compelled to fall back still further, to prevent this. [illegible] plished. The enemy were now inside the breastworks, pressing us towards the town, when darkness put an end to the fighting. During the day our loss was heavy; that of the enemy must have exceeded ours. Three pieces of the First Missouri battery were captured by the enemy.

Yesterday morning the enemy opened briskly on the town with shot and shell. Our batteries replied. For an hour the cannonading was very heavy. At the expiration of that time their battery of seven guns was captured and quietness reigned. A regiment of sharpshooters was ordered out to feel the enemy, at half-past nine, and met them three-quarters of a mile from the town, advancing rapidly. A vigorous fire opened on their exposed ranks, mowing them down like grass. The slaughter was frightful, but with unparalleled daring they pushed forward, charged over the temporary earthworks where the battery was placed and broke our lines. A temporary panic seized our men and the rebels marched into the streets of Corinth. Batteries which had been previously placed in the town, however, opened on them; and with the aid of the men who reformed, stopped the advance of the enemy. They wavered and fell back. Our lost battery was retaken, and again hurled destruction into their ranks. The day was saved, and the enemy were in full retreat. Our loss was comparatively small during this fearful charge. In the charge, one rebel Brigadier and two acting Brigadiers were killed and left on the field.

WILL ADJOURN.—The present session of the Oregon Legislature will adjourn sine die to-morrow, the 17th inst.

By Overland Telegraph.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

LATER FROM THE EAST.

YREKA, Oct. 11.—The following is the balance of yesterday's dispatch:

BALTIMORE, Oct. 9.—At the city election yesterday, Chapman, Union candidate, received 8,900 votes; Dusky, independent Union, 1,200. Regular Council ticket elected with one exception.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Times' Washington dispatch has the following: Lincoln's proclamation has inspired the negroes [illegible] throughout the South. Slaves refuse to return to their homes and protect their families. They believe the negroes have organized secret associations and are awaiting an opportunity to rise en masse.

It is said that the negroes have become more restive, having already heard of the proclamation. Women and children in the rural districts are returning to the cities for protection, and consternation prevails.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Times correspondence from Antietam, [illegible] information from Virginia, confirms the idea that the main body of the rebel army [illegible] on the South bank of the Potomac, retreated in the direction of Winchester a week ago.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 8.—[illegible] surprised a Confederate force today. He attacked the guard on the turnpike bridge with such vigor that the rebels were unable to destroy the bridge as they intended. Six dead and fifteen wounded rebels were found on the field. Our loss is three killed.

BURKSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 8.—Bragg's army attacked Gen. McCook's corps at this place yesterday. The fighting was desperate. The Confederate forces were greatly superior to the Federals. The fight closed at 7:15 P. M. The fighting was principally done by Gen. Rosseau's Division. The battle was resumed today.

Louisville, Oct. 9th.—A doubtful rumor says we lost the engagement at Perryville. The rebels held possession of the field.

The rebel account of our gunboat on St. John's river, is explained by a gentleman who left there two weeks ago. The gunboats were preparing an expedition up the river for the capture of Jacksonville. A land force of 15,000 with an Enfield battery was to take part. They had to construct fortifications on St. John bluff. It is probable that the battery was shelled by gunboats simply to occupy the attention of enemy, while the troops landed at Greenville Point, to march to rear of battery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9th.—News of a change in the Cabinet and Army are again in circulation. The Washington correspondent of the Post says: Banks is to succeed Stanton as Secretary of War; Halleck is to return to his command in the West; McClellan succeeds Halleck; Hooker is to take McClellan's command.

The Herald contains dates to the 5th: it says there is highly important and gratifying news to communicate. The rebels pushed their pickets some distance this side of the Black Water, and had grown quite bold in their menaces. Thursday evening Gen. Peck ordered a reconnoisance in force, which took place on Friday. We drove the enemy's pickets in on the main body.

A smart skirmish ensued, resulting in the complete rout of the rebels. They were pursued as far as Franklin on the other side of Blackwater, and the object of reconnoisance was fully accomplished. Much information regarding rebels strength and position was gained. There are no rebels this side of [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10th.—McClelland's address to his army says he defeated a numerous and powerful army in an action which was most desperately fought, and remarkable for duration and destruction of life. The obstinate bravery of the troops of Hooker, Mansfield and Sumner, and daring of Franklin's corps, and sturdy valor of Burnside's corps presents a brilliant spectacle of courage which will swell their hearts with pride and exultation. Fourteen guns, 39 stand of colors, 15,000 small arms, 6,000 prisoners are evidence of the completeness of our triumph.

A CURE FOR DIPTHERIA.—The Easton Express says: A lady friend informs us, for publication, that a piece of camphor placed on the tongue, and held there to dissolve, is a sure cure for this dreadful malady. She says it has been tried effectually to her knowledge.

The attention of the community is respectfully solicited to the New Goods received by the last steamer—embracing a full line of Ladies' Silk Mantillas, French Bonnets, Florals, new style Hats, Caps, Poplins and Delaines, together with a full assortment of Gents' New Style thin Cassimere suits, Fancy Sacks, Broadcloth [illegible] of Business Suits, and the very latest fashion of Panama and New York Fancy Summer, Panama, [illegible] and Light Cassimere Hats. THE DAILY OREGONIAN may be had at the Franklin Book Store, and at Charles Barrett's, Front street.

CITY COUNCIL.—met last evening at the usual hour. Absent: Messrs. Dennison and Williams. Some unimportant business was transacted. After opening and reading several bids for the completion of Engine House No. 1, and ascertaining the lowest bidder, Messrs. Holmes and Coffin being desirous of defeating the award of contract according to bids, tried several expedients without avail, finally adopted the old plan of "running," thus leaving the Council without a quorum, whereupon that Fatherly Body put on their hats and walked out.

A RUNAWAY.—Another runaway match occurred last evening, in which two horses attached to a carriage ran up Front street to corner of Morrison and up Morrison to First, where they were brought to by coming in contact with numerous posts and corner buildings. No serious damage done as far as we could learn.

ARRIVAL.—The Chief Justice of Washington Territory, C. C. Hewitt, arrived in this city last evening from across the plains. We learn that he will immediately proceed to Olympia, as a term of Court comes off in his district commencing on Monday next.

AMUSEMENTS.—"Martin the Wizard" has returned to the city and will give another pleasing and varied entertainment at the Willamette Theatre on Friday evening for the benefit of the Public School of this city. We hope that everybody will turn out, as the object is certainly creditable and the entertainment will be amusing and agreeable. We also learn that he intends to take a benefit himself on Saturday night, and on Monday night will perform again for the benefit of the Fire Companies. Mr. Martin exhibits in this a very commendable degree of liberality and should be patronized by all who feel inclined to visit such places of amusement. His tricks are truly wonderful and well worth going to see.

COMPLIMENTS OF FRANK DEKUM.—We gratefully acknowledge the receipt, about 11 o'clock last night, of "the compliments of Frank Dekum," all nicely spread out upon the Editor's table, in the shape of oyster patties, beef's tongue, etc., etc., with the accompanying fixtures, including a couple of bottles of "something good to take." Mr. Dekum is "a man after our own heart"—knows how to keep a "confectionery and oyster saloon," and can win the affections of a hungry printer, "or any other man," in a superb style,—you bet!

LETTER FROM GEN. McDOWELL—A COURT OF INQUIRY DEMANDED.—Washington, Sept. 11, 1862.—General McDowell writes the following: To his Excellency the President: I have been informed by a Senator that he has seen a [illegible] in pencil, written by a colonel of cavalry mortally wounded in the recent battles, stating, among other causes, that he was [illegible] a victim "to McDowell's treachery," and that his last request was that this note might be shown to you. That the colonel believed the charge, and felt his last act on earth was a great public service, there can, I think, be no question. This solemn accusation from the grave of a gallant officer who [illegible] his country is entitled to great consideration, and I feel called on to endeavor to [illegible] as well as so general a charge from [illegible] no longer able to support it can be [illegible]. I, therefore, beg you to please cause a [illegible] to be instituted for its investigation, and [illegible] absence of any knowledge whatever as [illegible] particular act or acts, time or place, or [illegible] conduct the deceased may have had [illegible], I have to ask that the inquiry be [illegible] limitation, and be upon any point [illegible] subject which may in any way be [illegible] have led to this belief; that it may [illegible] to my whole conduct as a general [illegible] under another or whilst in a separate command; to my correspondence with [illegible]'s commanders, or with any [illegible] the enemy's lines; to my conduct [illegible] policy pursued by me towards the inhabitants of the country occupied by our [illegible] reference to themselves or their [illegible] and further, to any imputations of [illegible] robbery or disloyalty toward the national [illegible] individual having, like myself, an [illegible] trust; whether I have or have not [illegible] as a subordinate to those placed [illegible] giving them heartily, and to the best [illegible], all the support in my power; [illegible] I have or have not failed, through [illegible] personal motives, to go to the aid [illegible] reinforcements to my brother commander.

[illegible] subject of my alleged treachery or [illegible] may be fully inquired into, I beg [illegible], soldiers or civilians who know [illegible] that they know of any act of [illegible] to the charge in question be allowed [illegible] asked to make it known to the Court. I also beg that the proceedings of the Court may be open and free to the press from day to day.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your [illegible] servant, IRVIN McDOWELL.

Com'dr 3d Army Corps, Ar'y of Va.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—An official dispatch, dated Jackson, Tenn., October 6th, says: Generals Hurlbut and Ord came upon the enemy yesterday, and after seven hours hard fighting, drove them five miles back across the Hatchie river, toward Corinth, and captured two batteries and two hundred prisoners. General Rosekrans was immediately [illegible] of these facts, and was directed to [illegible] on the good work. A dispatch from [illegible], dated Chewalla, to-day, says: "The enemy are totally routed, throwing everything away. We are following sharply. Hurlbut, is following. The rebel General Martin [illegible] killed."

[Signed] GRANT.

White's Patent Lever Trusses.—These [illegible] are recommended to the public as the best ever [illegible]. The principle is new and different from any [illegible]. The Pad works over a Knuckle, giving it a circular [illegible] and UPWARD motion, thus being able to support [illegible] with half the pressure required by other [illegible]. The pain consequent upon heavy pressure is [illegible] avoided.

These instruments will not rust, and are the lightest, most [illegible] and most cleanly of all others. They can be [illegible] pleasure. Many persons have been cured by [illegible] ruptures of several years standing.

BY W. LAIR HILL.

PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY, &C.

Certain differences between the soil and vegetation on the east and those on the west side of this second volcanic axis of the country may, it is thought, be satisfactorily explained by atmospheric or meteorological peculiarities; so that the upheaval of this ridge, notwithstanding those differences, was probably contemporaneous with that of the Rocky Mountains, or at least at no earlier period. Whether this be so or not, it is certain that the Cascade range has undergone much more recent convulsions; and, indeed, of the numerous vents standing along the summit line, some might be properly classed, at present, as active volcanoes.

Between the Cascade and Rocky Mountain chains, the country is composed of immense plateaus, interspersed with numerous unconnected mountain ridges, of recent volcanic origin. Some of these are covered with immense forests, while others are merely sterile masses of trappean rocks, piled together in rugged heaps by the elevatory force of internal fires. By some of these less noted elevations and by spurs projecting from the two main ranges, the broad table lands above mentioned are divided into three distinct valleys, or rather basins; namely:

The Utah basin, centering at Great Salt Lake, but having many undulations forming minor geographical centers, to which its rivers flow and disappear in the sandy plains, or discharge their currents into inland lakes. This basin has no outlet to the sea.

The Klamath basin, lying to the northwest of the Utah, and drained by the Klamath River, running to the Pacific Ocean, and the river Deschuttes, emptying into the Columbia.

The Columbia River basin extends over a vast area of country, including all that portion of Oregon lying east of the Cascade Mountains, and known as Eastern Oregon, except the small surface occupied by the Klamath, a part of which is in California, and an almost equally small portion of the Utah basin, which lies principally in Utah Territory.

Eastern Oregon, besides containing several large lakes, is traversed by numerous rivers, but none are navigable except the Columbia and the Snake or Lewis River; which two streams, however, afford facilities for steamboat travel from the ocean, across the whole extent of the State, in its greater dimension, from west to east.

That portion of the State lying west of the Cascade Mountains, is divided into three principal valleys, the Willamette, the Umpqua, and Rogue river, drained by the rivers bearing these respective names. This country is quite different from Eastern Oregon in respect to its physical Geography, Geology and Climate.

Although the general character of this region is indicative of its having had formerly a volcanic origin, still there is found here a large proportion of sedimentary rocks, especially sandstone and a sort of conglomerate of highly silicious composition, which often contains shells and other indications of its sedimentary formation. In the Willamette Valley, this feature is chiefly observed on the western side of the river; and in the Umpqua and Rogue River Valleys, it becomes more marked on approaching the sea coast. Shales and a sort of argillaceous limestone, irreducible by the ordinary process of heating and slaking, also abound in many places. The country here is of a much less mineral character than that east of the Cascade Mountains, or even than those mountains themselves. Notwithstanding the evidences of volcanic origin common to all the western coast of America, and of which this region presents many, the rocks here, and especially on the Coast Mountains, are often found regularly stratified, and in some instances their parallelism remains undisturbed for considerable distances.

The geological basis of the coast mountains is sandstone. Scoriaceous and trappean masses occur in the more volcanic localities. At the intersection of these mountains by the Umpqua river, sandstone prevails, and the strata remain uninterrupted, except at long intervals.

Numerous bays and estuaries of different magnitudes intersect the shore along the western border of the State, and several streams having their sources in the coast mountains, flow into the ocean through small valleys of great fertility and beauty.

India-Rubber Cloth.

Another achievement has been made in operative chemistry, which deserves notice, because of the many useful applications of which it is capable, as was fully explained in a paper read before the London Society by Mr. Walton. The achievement consists in a process by which India-rubber can be produced and manufactured from linseed oil. This oil is plentiful and cheap. We import as much linseed every year as will yield about 60,000 tons of oil, and this, when converted into artificial India-rubber, would be salable at about half the price of the real article. A notion of the process may be formed by persons who have noticed that linseed-oil when spilt dries in a thin, tough film, and that a similar film forms on the surface of a quantity of the oil when left for a time undisturbed. Mr. Walton takes a mass of these films, mixes a small portion of shell-lac there-with, crushes them, subjects them to a course of rolling at a high temperature, and so produces a substance which closely resembles India-rubber, and is applicable to as many purposes as caoutchouc itself, and to many of those for which gutta-percha is now used. The notice but a few of its applications; we find clothing, water-proof sheets, tarpaulings, carriage-fittings, saddlery, imitation leather, shoes and boots, printer's blankets, tubing, tank-lining, ship-sheathing, knife and tool handles, picture-frames, and all the articles which are now fashioned of vulcanite and ebonite. The usual way of preparing the so-called America leather cloth involves a period of seven days; with this new substance a much greater quantity of the cloth may be prepared in one day.
